Here is an extract from Floodlands

..... How do you think people have survived?

How do people remember who they are and where they're from?

And how do they know what it means to be human, what makes us more than animals?

How do they pass these things on to their children?

Stories, that's how.'

1. Do you agree with William's statement.?

if you do. Why?

If you don't Why not?

Does telling stories make us different to animals?

2. 'Stories walk the truth into existng....' what truth may Floodland' be walking into existng? Does this statement relate to the extract in any way?

3.Main TASK

Which stories have you had passed on to you. Write down a whole story(not just the title) that you have been told. Send it it to me
